Ballooningists Are Back Home After Adventures

(By Associated Press)

New York, Jan. 14.—Lieutenants Kloor, Farrell, and Pinton, naval balloonists, arrived here this morning, exactly a month after they had landed near Moose Factory, Ont., after a balloon flight from the Rockaway naval air station.

A crowd of relatives, naval officers and a group of business men from Rockaway greeted the party. The officers were taken to a hotel where they were guests of honor at a luncheon given by Rockaway residents.

The balloonists declared they were "none the worse" for their perilous adventure in the north woods where they were lost for 4 days.

DURANT IS BACK IN AUTO WORLD

Former President of General Motors Starts New Company.

(Special to this Gazette.)

New York, Jan. 14.—William C. Durant, former president of the General Motors corporation, which he founded, refused to be downed in the automobile trade world. He reappeared in the role of an automobile manufacturer when a charter was filed in Albany, N. Y., for the Durant Motors, Inc., yesterday.

The capital of the new company is $5,000,000, consisting of 1,000,000 shares of no par value. It is said the initial offering of stock would be 500,000 shares and that has already been oversubscribed by the friends and associates of Mr. Durant.

The formation of the Durant Motors company caused no surprise today in Janesville among Sanborn officials. When Pierre S. du Pont succeeded Durant as president of the G. M. Co. during the threatened crisis on Wall street, it was then announced by Janesville men that "Durant would not be downed in the automobile market."

This is the third attempt of the wizard of Flint and Detroit to regain fortunes and a controlling hold in the auto manufacturing game. His second attempt was successful through the development of the Chevrolet Motor Car company.

No mention is made whether Durant will purchase a new plant outright or will build a new plant as a medium to again attempt to climb the ladder to the top of the automobile world.

FRICTION WITH JAPANESE SENTRIES MEETS PROTEST OF U. S.

KILLING OF U. S. OFFICER FIRST FATALITY OF NUMEROUS ENCOUNTERS.

REGRETS DEATH

Guarantee That Similar Incidents Will Be Improbable, Asked.

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, Jan. 14.—Satisfactory assurance that the Japanese government will make "adequate" reparation for the killing of Lieutenant Landford is a note dispatched last night to the Tokio foreign office.

It is understood the state department reminded the Japanese that while the shooting of Lieutenant Landford was the first instance of a fatality, there had been numerous cases of encounters between the Japanese and American military, and reports received here indicated that in too many of them the Japanese appeared to be the aggressors.

The Japanese were urged, it was said, to adopt immediately such measures as would prevent further friction.

Secretary of State Hughes in a note to Japan questioned the right of Japanese soldiers to challenge any American officer, soldier, or sailor, but that phase of the case is regarded as already adjusted by the report from Admiral Clegg that General G. H. Dyer had issued orders that Americans in Vladivostok were not to be halted by Japanese sentries.

Formal Regret Received. The belief of the American officials that Japan is willing to rectify the injury and take steps to prevent recurrence of a similar incident was strengthened by the receipt today of a formal note of regret and condolence transmitted through the Japanese ambassador.

BANKRUPT BANKER SUICIDE IN COURT

Countryman Who Lost Heavily in Famous Bull Case, Kills Self.

(Special to the Gazette.)

Dixon, Ill., Jan. 14.—Elmer J. Countryman, petitioner in bankruptcy proceedings here, shot himself today in a rooming house in Chicago. He was charged in thirteen indictments yesterday with forgery, embezzlement, and larceny, killed himself yesterday afternoon with a revolver in the Chicago county court house.

Countryman, former cashier of the Union State bank here and in 1915 unsuccessful candidate on the Progressive ticket for county treasurer, had just concluded a conference with Mrs. Countryman and his attorney. Court was in session and Judge Harry Edwards was awaiting his appearance to enter a plea of guilty or not guilty to the charges.

Could Not Raise Bond. His bond had been increased as a consequence of the indictments, and it was reported that the property scheduled by his sureties was not sufficient. Sheriff Schenholz was called to the court house and informed him he would have to go to jail pending the adjustment of the bond.

"I want to brush up a bit, sheriff," Schenholz said, "but I can't get the bond." Countryman was lying on the floor. A bullet from a .32 calibre revolver had penetrated the brain. He had contemplated suicide several times before his arrest.

Investigation of Countryman's financial affairs began early in December when he filed his petition in bankruptcy. He told them he had far-sighted plans for live stock. One story concerned a $100,000 bull—Raggy Corndyke VII. He and his partner purchased a half interest in Raggy for $50,000. It was one of many large investments.

Bull's Pedigree Fraudulent. Persons in the east who sold them the bull posted its mother's milk for pedigree, and it showed a remarkable likeness, he said. But he learned later this pedigree had been achieved by squinting cream into it from a rubber bulb concealed in the clothing of an assistant.

His death, it is said, will cost creditors of the Union State bank $30,000. The clerk reported that they will be unable to collect because Countryman was the only person who had knowledge of the transactions and could supply the evidence to collect them.

Countryman had lived in Dixon 14 years. He was 43 years old.

IRISH CATHOLICS OUTRAGED BY BRITISH, CLAIM

O'CALLAGHAN, LORD MAYOR OF CORK, TESTIFIES OF CONDITIONS IN HOMETOWN.

WOMEN KILLED

Various Attempts to Burn City Made Previous to Fire.

Washington, Jan. 14.—Catholic churches, convents, parochial schools and priests themselves are objects of constant outrages by British crown forces in Ireland, Daniel O'Callaghan, lord mayor of Cork, declared today in continuing his statement before the commission of the Committee of One Hundred investigating conditions in Ireland.

Father Griffin of Galway, he declared, had been killed "undoubtedly because he was known to have received an invitation from the American committee to give testimony."

Father MacSwiney, of Cork, he said, was taken from a train car on December 18 and ordered to "die" "To die with the Pope." Refusing, the lord mayor added, the priest was practically stripped of his clothing and then beaten.

The lord mayor said there was constant mistreatment of women despite the usual belief they were "immune from indignities committed by British forces." He gave names and dates of some dozen alleged instances of the killing of women, and also told of women being driven from their homes in night clothing without shoes. In one instance, "a woman was held kneeling in a ditch of water in an effort to extract information from her."

Attempts to Burn Cork. Previous to the big fire in Cork numerous efforts were made to burn the city hall and other buildings, the lord mayor said, especially those thought to have been used by Sinn Fein clubs.

Calling on the American people for proof that the declaration that the United States entered the world war to protect the rights of small nations was not "humbug," O'Callaghan finished his testimony today. Michael P. Doyle, his counsel, announced the lord mayor would be in this country for "some time," and would be at the service of the commission if needed.

Other speakers were Emil Pautz, president of the Janesville Builders Exchange, and J. J. Gelsner, manager of the association's insurance company.

Upon entering the banquet hall, the builders found the lights out and the long tables lighted by red candles. The room was green with noted flowers on the tables. All present were fancy paper caps. Fred Green of this city was responsible for the setting.

ARMY EDUCATIONAL PLAN THREATENED

Cut in Military Would Disappoint Men Seeking School Advantages.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Washington, Jan. 14.—Congress is considering the cutting down of the standing army to 175,000 men and this means that a surplus of about 100,000 men would have to be honorably discharged when their enlistments expire. There are indications of disappointment among the young men who are rushing into the army to get the benefits of the new educational system.

From practically every army corps area in the United States has come word of the success of the educational system. The new training system which has been in operation for about a year.

Educational System to Stay. It is a safe bet that the educational system started in the army has come to stay. Either the cutting down of the army to 175,000 men will mean some plan whereby enlistments are accepted for a year and no longer or else the regulars who have been in the service for years will have to be encouraged to seek honorable discharges so as to make way for the youngsters desiring vocational and general education.

Some of the old generals who have been shouting for big appropriations for this or that purpose say frankly that if anything is to be cut it should be appropriations for education and vocational training.

Would Cut Study Time. But that's not the difficulty. Congress probably will accept the plan. The new development is that by cutting down the size of the army the detail work at the army posts will increase for the men left in the service and they will not have as much time for study. Half the enlisted men are in schools now and at least 80 per cent of those who enlist ask for education and say that their chief reason for entering the service is to get an education.

The cost of recruiting has therefore been cut down from $90 a man to $42 a man and there's a big waiting list.

Army Plan for Growth-Ups. The question is whether congress will take advantage of the opportunity to reach thousands of alien adults as well as American born who for one reason or another have in their youth been deprived of education. The plan for a new department of education in the cabinet would not include direct instruction but merely the stimulation of state school systems and would reach the young. The army plan would reach the grown ups and at the same time create a military reserve.

TWO CARS STOLEN; FOUND IN AN HOUR

Youthful marauders are believed by police to be responsible for the theft of two cars here Wednesday night. Both were recovered in the city later in the evening.

When he went to a Fourth ward home to deliver a special delivery letter, Thomas Farrell reported his car was taken. He parked it with the engine running. The machine was found about 11 o'clock near the West Side ditch barn.

Another car was taken from in front of the Majestic theater and found sometime later on South Jackson street near the Rock County Telephone company's exchange.

Arrests are expected.

Blackhawk Apartments

8% First Mortgage Gold Bonds

Class "A" Wisconsin Securities

Dated Jan. 15, 1921. Due Serially Jan. 15, 1924-1933

Interest payable semi-annually on Jan. 15 and July 15, at the Bank of Southern Wisconsin, Janesville, Wisconsin. Coupon Bonds registerable as to principal in denominations of $500, $200 and $100, redeemable at $102, and in reverse numerical order.

R. A. Eckstein Company, Inc., Milwaukee, Trustee.

Security--

The Fire-proof Blackhawk Apartment Building on the west side of East Milwaukee St., near North East St., Janesville, Wis., three stories and basement, brick, stone, steel, reinforced concrete; a most substantial construction throughout containing 22 apartments for which we have already had forty applications. The interior arrangement is ideal for comfort, convenience and privacy; in keeping with the beautiful exterior. Everything is most modern.

Location--

Considered the finest for an apartment of this class. The hill district has been the most popular residence section in Janesville for several years. Modern apartments and private residences which have been erected in this location have not been able to meet the demand and this condition of shortage will prevail for years to come. The present increasing population of Janesville will always supply more than the required number of tenants for this apartment.

Valuation--Income--

Our appraisers have estimated the entire property valuation at $129,000 taking into consideration the present valuations, the cost of improvements and taking conservative estimate of earnings, having deducted a liberal estimate for running expenses. The total annual earnings are estimated to exceed $16,500, approximately four times the greatest annual interest charge before any of the bonds have been paid.

Sinking Funds and Other Safe Guards--

Provision has been made for monthly deposits of one-twelfth of the amount required annually for payment of interest of the maturing bonds. The semi-annual reduction of the debt after three years out of the earnings is one of the strongest safe-guards of this issue. The title is guaranteed by R. A. Eckstein Company, Inc., of Milwaukee; the trustee certifies the identity of each bond. Ample Fire insurance is deposited to protect the bond holder against fire loss.

Recommendation--

Having purchased these bonds with our own funds we are prepared to recommend them to investors in large or small amounts. Janesville people have opportunity through this issue to buy bonds secured by Janesville property—an at home investment.

SOPRANO TO SING
BEFORE APOLLO CLUB

Miss Gladys Swarthout, young American soprano, will give the January recital of the Apollo club at 8:15 o'clock Monday evening in the Methodist church. Miss Swarthout has achieved remarkable success and recognition in concert and recital work.

Her personal charm and supreme beautiful voice have won for her the most enthusiastic acclaim. She was a protégé of the late Campanini, director of the Chicago Opera company. Miss Swarthout's programs are marked with musicianship and sincerity. She will be accompanied on the piano by Robert Yale.

DADY NAMED TO
TRINITY VESTRY; 4
ORPHANS ADOPTED

The first annual meeting since the consolidation of the parishes of Christ and Trinity Episcopal churches of Janesville was held last night at the parish house on South Washington street with more than 100 people in attendance at the church sign, which preceded the business meeting.

St. John's T. Cooper, H. H. Parish, Sidney Luskwick, and George Richards were elected delegates to the diocesan council which will be held at Milwaukee, January 25.

The house of church women will meet in the Cream City Jan. 26, for the first time since its establishment last year. The four delegates of Janesville who have the honor of attending the first meeting are: Mrs. J. T. Hooper, Mrs. H. H. Parish, Mrs. John Dady and Mrs. J. L. Bostwick.

John W. Dady and Herbert V. Allen were elected members of the vestry for a term of three years. George Richards was re-elected junior warden for a term of two years.

Four orphans of the Near East were adopted for a year by the parish by unanimous vote, $240 being appropriated. The Women's Guild organized last year with 40 members and the Young People's guild with 25 members both reported a prosperous and eventful year of activities.

REVIEW OF THE YEAR IN SATURDAY'S GAZETTE.

What has been accomplished in a year in the city of Janesville and Rock county, in Southern Wisconsin and the territory of which Janesville is the trade center, will be told in the issue of the Janesville Daily Gazette tomorrow.

There has been a tremendous number of things done in the last year. It may be said that for eight months of 1920 the United States was under high business pressure, and Janesville and this territory occupied a position very close to the apex.

The Gazette, Saturday, will be interesting. It will be more than that, too; it will be valuable as a part of the history of the greatest year ever known since the republic was established in almost every line of affairs. To the city it has meant much more than a mere measurement of time and the passing of 365 days. It has meant a new life and a new outlook. The year has called attention to Janesville in a marked manner. The city has more and more fixed its place as the natural trading center for the people of a wide territory, all interested in the activities of the city and its upbuilding.

What these achievements have been will be told in the Gazette tomorrow.

A LARGE RESPONSIBILITY.

There is a large responsibility resting on the Master Builder. We look to him for suggestions and aid in construction that will make something besides a dry goods box with steps on, for a house. He need not be an architect to do this. He has a wide responsibility also to the community jointly with the public, more especially at this time when labor should be employed, in pushing work. The Master Builder is not alone a business man catering to the wants of the people, but he adds something to every community that only ravages of time and fire will completely destroy. There are evidences of the work he has done standing today from centuries and centuries ago. That was when the "builder wrought with greatest care each minute and unseen part." So the builder has a larger responsibility than comes to the lot of the usual avocation.

What is needed right now is the builder at work and with him hundreds, yes thousands, of employed men. His services should be called into action now. There are scores of houses in Janesville that can be made into acceptable and attractive places of residence if the Master Builder, as a specialist in his line, is called in to assist. This is the time to act. We have labor and we agree with the governor of the state that we have a duty beyond that of mere business in getting all that idle labor into active money earning service. That is the largest responsibility of the Master Builder—getting busy, getting the public to get busy and getting the workman busy.

BREAKING CONTRACTS.

"The man who deliberately breaks a contract, freely entered into, helps to destroy all business relations," said Senator Lenroot at the dinner of the shoemen at Milwaukee, Thursday night.

This very thing of cancellation of contracts has been one of the largest factors in stagnation of business and has backed the manufacturer against the wall with returned or piled up stocks, and in many cases made it necessary to curtail manufacture to the lowest point. In fact, cancellation has been one of the largest factors in the situation in business for several months, and from which the manufacturers are just recovering. As Senator Lenroot says, such cancellations help to destroy all business relations and make future sales and contracts harder for both manufacturer and customer.

Senator Lenroot said some other things of vital importance to the assemblage of business men at the dinner in Milwaukee, and one was that the tax burden should be lifted as far as possible and distribution of that burden made more equitable. That this would be done when congress met in special session after March 4, he assured his audience.

JAPAN'S BUGS AND THE BIRDS.

The Literary Digest takes time and space to mention among other things which this nation owes to Japan, the Japanese Beetle now devastating trees and shrubs and the Oriental Peach Moth which came to us in importations of Japanese cherry trees. The original authority is the weekly News letter of the Department of Agriculture. These bugs will cost millions of dollars each year in loss of fruits and in replacing trees. The enemy of the moth and the beetle is the bird. Japan did not send any birds along to kill the pests, but we have them here and should preserve them. It is not too early to begin to think about the birds. There have been many in the neighborhood this winter, braving the cold and believing, evidently, that the winter was to be a mild one. They should be fed regularly. Then in the spring the birds ought to have homes. The Gazette will have another bird house competition this spring, and the boys and girls can begin now in the winter evenings to think about what they are going to build, or start building.

What do you know about birds? This is a good time to find out about them in the books, and just what bugs and pests they like most.

SUGAR COATING THE SCIENTIFIC PILL

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—"This may be agriculture, but I reckon I'll stick to farming," remarked one farmer on looking at a neat little government monograph on the dangers of dry rot, profusely illustrated with statistical tables. This happened some time ago, when the dryness of an agriculture bulletin was proverbial. Science conscientiously poured the essence of its best agricultural research into faultlessly technical bulletins and forwarded them to the farmer. And the farmer would glance at the unadorned covers and lift his eyebrows as to say, "Humph, what's science got to do with hocking potatoes?"

Up to a few years ago, this was the pathetic situation which prevailed. Then the government waked up to the fact that it had to make agricultural sciences popular or its work would go for nothing. And no sooner had this conviction been officially established than the farmers' bulletin began to change, until now it is a thing of beauty, and to anybody who can profit by its contents, it ought to be a joy forever. Scientific facts are reduced to words of one syllable. Latin terms are practically omitted. Pictures make the proposition unmistakably clear. And the whole is enclosed in an attractively decorated cover.

This is an important thing for the country. The Department of Agriculture is not like any other government office. It does not matter much whether the people know the detailed results of the work of the War department or of the patent office. But the work of the Department of Agriculture is valuable only in so far as the results are known to the people and put into practice.

We have referred to the farmer particularly as the object of this agricultural research, but the Department of Agriculture serves anybody who wants to know about exterior, pick up or how to care for a cow, or to arrange a kitchen, plan a flower garden, or raise a canary, or make his diet balance, or any of the hundred other home questions that people from New York to San Francisco bother over.

Putting the results of a problem solved in a laboratory with scientific methods and apparatus into a readable bulletin containing practical information is one of the most difficult phases of the department's work. The scientist who conducted the research usually writes the bulletin. One of the artists of the bureau makes illustrations. Then the manuscript goes to the Division of Publications and the pictures go to the Division of Illustrations.

At the same time, a cover has to be designed. The decorative cover is one of the newest features of the farmers' bulletin. The artists of the Division of Illustrations figure that if you pick up a leaflet marked "Comb-honey Production" and note that there is a lot of printed information on the cover and nothing else, ten to one you put down the publication without ever looking inside. Pick up the same leaflet with the same title, but instead of the superfluous explanatory remarks, a picture of a hive with bees swarming, and above that a picture of a honey-comb ready for the table—so realistically drawn that it makes you hungry, and ten to one, even if you are a dweller in a flat you will open the bulletin to find out whether you could start a bee farm on the first essay.

This is ordinary advertising appeal. But there are other problems of cover designing more or less peculiar to the farmers' bulletin. For instance, artists of the department figure that the farmer is more readily convinced by a photograph than by a drawing. But the wary farmer who accepts unquestioningly the photograph of a fat, sleek herd of cows, and mistrusts a drawing of the same herd, does not always reckon on the possibilities of the camera and paint brush. Not that the government artists try to paint the lies or add an extra inch of girth to a prize hog. But in some of the covers, only the artist could tell where photography leaves off and drawing begins.

"See the cover of this hog bulletin," explained one of the artists. "This bulletin deals with raising hogs in the south, and the photograph submitted for the cover showed a man feeding corn to the pigs. We were fixing it for use when luckily some one called our attention to the significant fact that they don't feed corn to hogs down south. It was a mistake that would never have been noticed—except by the people who would want the bulletin. Of course, we cut the man off the picture, and left just the hogs."

"This sheep bulletin cover, too, had to be patched up. In the foreground, you see a fine picture of a man shearing the flock. Back of it, originally, there was a beautiful colonial mansion. It made an artistic photograph, but the attention was distracted. You would keep looking away from the sheep to the house—it was too attractive. So we cut off the house."

Limited funds sometimes add to the difficulty of turning out the irresistibly attractive bulletin. Not so long ago some of the department employees thought it would be a good idea to use colored pictures on bulletin covers and for illustrations where color is a guide. Color in such instances is refused to us so that it would be worth the extra dollars it would add to the government printing bill, so the farmers' bulletins continue to appear mainly in black and white.

Thirteen million of these bulletins were distributed by the department last year. This is just about the average number sent out in the past several years, except in 1918, when twenty-three million were distributed because of food and economy campaigns. Since the department began to print bulletins it has been sending them out to congressmen for their constituents, to agricultural experiment stations, and to people who wrote for them. Now, congress regularly cuts down on printing, the government printing office is rushed with work, and the result is at best just the usual number of bulletins. But the real test is this: Very many more farmers and housewives are reading the bulletins and expressing their appreciation of them. The facts that they wouldn't swallow when served to them raw and unadorned, they now accept, and like Oliver, ask for more.

Kenosha is making a hard fight for second place in pure cheesedness, with Hurley only a few laps in the lead.

Senator Lenroot is due to have a crowd and a half when he appears in Janesville next Saturday.

Doctor Hicks said there would be a storm on the 15th and it is here.

JOHN ALEXANDER LENT.
The Rev. Alexander Lent has lived his little day. And they've put away his clay. For nine and twenty years he preached the word of God to men. Which, in itself, would not have brought this tribute from my pen. But day by day and week by week he toiled to earn his bread. And as a modest facet the heat of metal fiery red.

St. Paul, that he might pay his way, made many a canvas tent. So many a stove was fashioned by this Alexander Lent. He asked no favors from his flock, no task of life he shirked. He earned the admiration of the men with whom he worked; Stove Molders' Union No. 6 held him in high regard. He understood the men and knew wherein their lives were hard.

The record of this modest soul is one of service true. He did not rugged manliness whatever he served to do. Six days each week with mold and ore and running metal hot. He served a full term of his trade, and brave it bore his lot. An admirable citizen in every way was he. Who lived and died to what he thought a Christian ought to be.

The little town of Peckskill is a richer town today. Because of Alexander Lent, whom God has called away. His memory shall long survive. In all of Peckskill's plan. There's none but what is better just for having known the man. And so this tribute small I pay to Alexander Lent. Who molded stoves as cheerfully as St. Paul sowed a tent. CARL W. RIDDICK.
IF REPRESENTATIVE CARL W. RIDDICK of Montana eventually is eliminated from consideration by Harding in choosing his cabinet, it will be a real disaster to the Montana solon. For Riddick takes pride in the fact that he is the only real dirt farmer in the house. His home is on a farm, and he spends his time "working about the place" when not in Washington. Because of his practical experience in farming, he is talked of for secretary of agriculture. He points with pride to the fact that his district contains more farms than any other district.

Riddick is a republican. He has two sons who served in the war. He was re-elected from the Second Montana district at last election.

PHOSPHORUS IN FOOD

While meat has come to be a practical, comparatively cheap, excellent, wholesome and very nourishing article of diet with forward-looking, well posted American people. Probably Mark Twain did not foresee that when he advised the young man who would be helpful for wholes every morning. In "thin days, and long before the modern quick-food specialist burst upon the horizon, was "brain food."

There is, of course, nothing in the notion that any particular kind of food or any element of food goes to nourish or strengthen any particular organ or part of the body. It is as silly to imagine that lean meat is "muscle food" as it is to imagine that fish is brain food. The height of absurdity in this realm of imagination is reached by some few thousands of our revered college presidents, noted attorneys, eminent bankers, and prominent physicians who have been taken in by the plausible but entirely untrue statement that certain foods purport to be a "nerve food"—the bigger they come the harder they fall for the pseudo-scientific bunk.

Phosphorus is present in great many foods and is an essential element of food. But it is childish to suppose that phosphorus or any compound or derivative of phosphorus is particularly beneficial to the brain or the nervous system. The specious plans of vendors who have phosphorus-containing foods or medicines to market.

In a man weighing 70.000 grams (154 pounds) there are about 1,400 grams of phosphorus in the bones, 330 grams in the muscles, and only 130 grams in the viscera, and only 130 grams in the blood. Therefore, it would be less absurd to think of phosphorus-containing medicines or foods as good for the muscles than to take them for weak nerves or weak brain. Mind, I don't say there is no such thing as a weak brain. But let it be to deny what is only too evident on all sides. But I do say that Barnum said a bigger mouthful than Sherman did at the time he was selling the general public in mind—what would he have said of the lighthouse membership of the great American Wisliewski family?

The yolk of an egg contains more phosphorus and in a more readily assimilable form than the daily dose of any medicine or medicine food known to man. Cheese, and, indeed, is rich in phosphorus, even though its constituents are written for by old

American Optimism Will Win, Madison Man Says in Thrilling Address

American solution of American problems in an American way! Members of the Wisconsin Master Builders' association were thrilled with this message in an oratorical address by Charles E. Whelan, Madison, yesterday afternoon.

Two excellent addresses were made in the afternoon, the address by the Madison speaker, and one by O. W. Rosenthal on the absorbing subject before the builders—that of being licensed.

"Optimism will win," declared Whelan during his speech. "Face the future with bright hopes, not depression. It takes courage to face the present industrial future, but it is the man who has courage that wins. Build for service, and you master builders will have erected a monument to your honesty, service and your art."

"Let us have an American solution to our American problems, not foreign influence in the settlement of our labor and industrial problems. Let only American voices guide our nation—none other. You men build for the new United States."

"We were reborn during the war. We are now welded together closer and more firmly knit to the glory of a nation. It is American, and, only American."

"You builders are the educated men. You are the men who do. That is education—accomplishment. I don't care if you never saw the inside of a finished college—you men can build them with a constructive education that comes from experience. Your education is of unlimited value because you accomplish much for the nation," declared Mr. Whelan.

The licensing of builders was urged upon the convention as a means of establishing the builders as a profession. Severe criticism was aimed at the architect by Rosenthal during the course of his address.

That the builder, from the time of the erection of the ancient pyramids to the modern skyscraper has not been classed as a professional man, was declared by the Chicago contractor and builder.

Making It a Profession. The licensing of builders as their registration. It was pointed out would establish the business on a status of profession that it warrants, and eliminate the quackness of the profession to a great degree. That license laws would mean the protection of the people and the building public, and would cause no hardship on an honest and qualified builder, was the contention of the speaker.

"You builders, established a business after long and costly experience," said the speaker. "You are not less able to perform your work because you lack a college education. The fact you build, the fact you construct safely and ably, is worth more to you than four years in any school. Building is Dangerous."

"They call a man who comes out of school with a sheep-skin a professional man," continued Rosenthal. "You men who build that college, that home, that skyscraper, are not classed as professionals. Let the architect mind his own business."

"Building is a dangerous business. Dangerous not only in the execution of the plans, in a financial way, to your physical being, but dangerous to your reputation. When you adopt a license system through the state you are protecting the public from the builder who does not know. It is a safeguard against the builder who is not qualified to erect buildings. The public has the right to ask that protection. The man who is honest in his building work has nothing to fear in the license system. If you are crooked and a speculator, the license statutes will drive you out of business. We can arrange for licensed builders in this state to be recognized in other states for interstate business."

Not to Cut Competition. "A license system is not to cut down competition, but to assure the public that a man who bids on a job is able to execute a contract fairly and without falling down on the job. Don't be afraid of investigation. You are selling a service which warrants the confidence of the public," said Rosenthal.

At the end of the speech the delegates and convention speakers arose and cheered both speakers lustily.

FORMER LOCAL MAN HELD UP IN CHICAGO

Advisers from Chicago today tell of a South side hold-up in which Harold L. Dearborn, formerly of Janesville, was the victim. The reports say Dearborn was confronted by a gunman late at night, ordered to get into a car, and taken on a fast ride. The four bandits in the machine frisked him from the top of his hat to his shoes and finally let him out near the South Shore Country club.

A cigarette case and about $7 in cash were taken. The bandits were kind enough to let him keep his watch and ring, both of which have monograms.

ALEC SHUMAN DIES IN MERCY HOSPITAL

Milton Junction.—Alec Shuman, age 30, died in the Mercy hospital, Janesville, from acute Bright's disease on last Wednesday night. Funeral services will be held in Milton Junction Saturday afternoon, Jan. 14, at two o'clock.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. P. Shuman, of Whitewater, and spent the most of his life at the farm home near Koshkonong. Two years ago he moved to Milton Junction with his family and became associated in the S. J. Nabson store.

He is survived by his wife and three small children, his parents, and a brother Charles Shuman and three sisters Miss Esther, Irene and May.

Uncle Si had the right idea (You'll say he had)—He was a great believer in "housing his machines."

He used to say to me when I was just starting out, "Boy, every nail you drive in every board in a shed that will save a good machine, adds just so much to the strength of every 'rib' in your bank account."

Uncle Si had the right idea. He knew that implement sheds were cheap and necessary—also, that farm machinery was necessary but not cheap. Business farmers—(you're one)—keep their machinery under cover.

I don't see as I'm any nearer finding out who Mother's lover will be than I was four months ago. I suppose it's still too soon. Peter said one day he thought widows ought to wait at least a year, and he guessed grasse-widows were just the same. My how mad I was at him for using that name about my mother! Oh, I knew what he meant. I'd heard it at school. (I know now what it was that made those girls act so queer and horrid.) There was a girl—never liked her, and I suspect she didn't like me, either. Well, she found out Mother had a divorce. You see, I had told her. I remembered those girls out West bragged. And she told a lot of the others. But it didn't work at all in this school here had a divorce in their families; and, if you'll believe it, they acted—some of them—as if it was a disgrace, even after I told them I was at home. I was a perfectly respectable and gentle divorcee. Nothing I could say made a mite of difference, with some of the girls, and then I was told that that perfectly horrid word, "grasse-widow." So I knew what Peter meant, though I was furious at him for using it. And I let him see it good and plain.

Of course I changed schools. I know Mother'd want me to, when she knew, and so I told her right away. I thought she'd be superb and haughty and disdainful and time time. But she wasn't. First she grew so white I thought she was going to faint. Then she began to cry and kiss and hug me. And that night I heard her talking to Aunt Hattie and saying, "To think that that poor innocent child had to suffer, too!" and some more which I couldn't hear, because her voice was all cracked up and husky.

Mother is crying now again quite a lot. You see, her six months are "most up, and I've got to go back to Father. And I'm afraid Mother is in a bad way about it. She had a letter last week from Aunt Jane, Father's sister. I heard her read it out loud to Aunt Hattie and Grandpa in the library. It was very stiff and cold and clipped, and ran something like this:

Dear Madam: Dr. Anderson desires me to say that he trusts you are beating in mind the fact that according to the decision of the court, his daughter Mary is to come to him on the first day of May. If you will kindly inform him as to the hour of her coming, he will be glad to see that she is properly met at the station.

Then she signed her name, Abigail Jane Emerson. (She was named for her mother, Grandma Anderson, same as Father wanted them to name me. Mercy! I'm glad they didn't. Mary and enough, but Abigail, Mother read the letter aloud, then she began to talk about it—how she felt, and how angry it was.

Well, Mother read the letter aloud, then she began to talk about it—how she felt, and how angry it was. I said that she almost wished Nurse Sarah was back again—that she, at least, was human.

"And see that she's properly met, indeed," went on Mother, with an indignant little choke in her voice. "Oh, yes, I know! Now if it were a star or a comet that he expected, he'd go himself and sit for hours and hours and hours and hours, and when his daughter comes, he'd send John with the horses, like enough, and possible that precious Abigail Jane of his. Or, maybe that fool of a son of his. Oh, Hattie, I can't let her go—I can't, I can't!"

I was in the window-seat around the corner of the chimney, reading. I don't know as she knew I was there. But I was, and I heard, and I've heard other things, too, all this week.

I'm to go next Monday, and as it comes nearer the time Mother's getting worse and worse. She's so unhappy over it. And of course that makes me unhappy, too. But I try not to show it. Yesterday, when she was crying and hugging me, and telling me how awful it was that that little girl should have to suffer, too, I told her not to worry, but that I, too, was suffering at all.

mounting the pulpit, he gave out the following notice:

"Dear brethren, it grieves me much to hear of the death of the horrible thing that has occurred in this parish. Some one has stolen a fowl from the yard of one of our esteemed parishioners.

"To prove that I am not the receiver of ill gotten goods, will the thief refrain from putting anything into the plate?"

The subsequent collection more than covered all the expenses.

In a little village of La Vendee, France, there lived a young doctor who frequently drove into the neighboring city of Nantes, where he was the customary customs officer who imposed the lawful duty upon all edibles entering the French town. This doctor, wishing to take some poultry with him and wishing to be honest and at the same time not to pay duty, drove into the city one day in a little cart with a pretty girl on either side of him. At the gate the guard asked: "Have you nothing to declare, doctor?"

"Nothing but two chickens and a rooster," he replied. The customs officer laughingly allowed him to pass.

Not long ago this same evader of customs passed through the gate, and an old retired customs officer said to him: "Ah, doctor, I am glad to see you back and to know that the rooster has returned a fowl"—and Clemeenceau laughed at the memory of his smuggling.

BILLY WHISKERS

By FRANCES TREGO MONTGOMERY

When Terrence Bull Pup received Billy Whiskers' letter asking about the circus, he was of two minds, both pleased and mad.

At first he was inclined to accept Billy's word of friendship and flattery as the true expressions of his warm heart, and write him a reply with a cordial invitation to come to Springfield at once, stay for a few days, and be his guest at the circus.

On reading the letter a second time, it occurred to him that Billy Whiskers might be trying to make use of him and that all his good looks were just so much bait with which to catch what he wanted.

He remembered that in the old days Billy Whiskers was in the habit of making about true friendship and his good looks were just so much bait with which to catch what he wanted.

Levi, the Bashful

He desired popularity, but was too timid to go after it.

"I read in the paper tonight," said Mr. Gibbons, one evening several days after Parker had accepted Melville's challenge, "that Parker High is organizing an ice-skating team."

"Yes, I guess that's right," said Lem, not looking up from his algebra book. "I saw a notice on the bulletin board today that all the fellows who want a position on the team should come out tomorrow afternoon for the try-outs."

"Well, you'll be there, I suppose," said Lem.

"Now—I guess I wouldn't have any chance—they didn't ask me anyhow. Now I guess I won't," Lem said, his head laid down on his pencil.

"They didn't ask you? Why, for goodness sake, son, you don't expect them to tender you an invitation on a silver platter, do you? You got to go out and show 'em what you can do. As for having no chance—I can't see why you haven't. You're not a bad skater are you?" Mr. Gibbons came was questioning.

And finally it developed that when the Parker High School called its 22 ice-skating candidates together Lemuel Gibbons was one of the group.

Lem stood on the edge of the group, not feeling as though he should mix in (bashfulness again). It had taken all his nerve to get this far and he had to take a strong hold on himself to keep from breaking away from the group's attention.

But he stuck it out, to use a common expression.

And when the day was over and Lem had returned home from the try-outs, he found that he had made the team.

"Good for you, Lem," praised his dad, which made Lemuel Gibbons feel joyful and proud, and he almost forgot that he had ever hated Parker.

Suggestion to Readers

While reading a book—story or text—it is often very helpful to make notes in the margins of the pages as you go along, to serve as references after the book has been read. Thus, if you wish to locate any minor detail concerning a story, or wish to hastily review the plot, all you need do is refer to the marginal notes.

ALL WISCONSIN MARVELS AS ITS CITIZENS CONTINUE TO PROCLAIM WONDERS OF KOZAK

Famous $10,000 Formula to Be Introduced in Janesville—People's Drug Co. Selected as Headquarters for Noted Health Expert.

Visitor Urges All to Fight Catarrh

It is surprising what an immense number, among those residing in such cities as Janesville, are really suffering from this almost universal malady when they think something else is wrong," said the Kozak man, in discussing his extensive studies.

"Probably the most prevalent and distressing condition that affects men and women in such communities as this is chronic catarrh of the mucous membranes. Catarrh of the stomach and kidneys is the most frequent cause of catarrhal conditions of the nose and throat lead to inevitable diseases. Show me a man whose hearing is affected and I will endeavor to show you a man who is suffering from catarrh. Frequently the lungs become diseased by the extension of a catarrhal inflammation by the way of the bronchial tubes to the lung substance.

"An offensive breath, discharges from the nose, droppings in the throat, constant sneezing, watery frequent sneezing, headaches, pains in the sides, pit of stomach and kidneys, nervousness, depression of spirits, unsound digestion, sleeplessness and susceptibility to colds and coughs are characteristic symptoms. In Kozak, I believe we have discovered the greatest combatant against this distressing condition. Everywhere, former victims of catarrh, are singing the praises of Kozak.

Mrs. Ada Greenwood, 213 Adams St., Green Bay, a nurse, said: "My nerves have quieted down. I have no more dizzy spells, my appetite increased and I feel much improved since taking Kozak."

Mrs. Lillian Johnson, 81 Otter St., Ashland, "Kozak relieved me of catarrh. I believe I have found a reliable remedy."

before taking Kozak. My head would feel congested, my nerves were bad and I continually suffered with nose-bleeds. I also had to be very particular when I ate.

"Through taking Kozak I acquired a good appetite, sleep well and am not nearly so nervous. Kozak is a fine remedy and I heartily recommend it."

Grateful for what Kozak accomplished in her case, and from the humanitarian spirit of wanting to help others less fortunate, Mrs. Edw. Town, 1907 N. 10th St., Sabeon, Wis., writes: "I used to complain of nervousness, depression of spirits, loss of appetite, nervous headaches and sluggish liver."

The second subdivision comprises 61 lots formerly in Clark and Withrow's addition. The owners are J. P. Cullen, Edward Amersopolis, and Henry Fiebush. Two new streets are provided for—Douglas and Spencer. The tract is bounded by Ringold, Racine, and Blackhawk streets.

LYNAUGH CASE WELL CONDUCTED

Dates for trial and for hearing were set by Judge George Grimm during the opening of circuit court this afternoon. The judge came here from Jefferson where he presided during the trial of Matthew Lynaugh.

"It was a wonderfully well conducted case," said Judge Grimm. "There is nothing more to say than the verdict itself. Both attorneys did splendid work and it was clearly contested through."

There are still 30 cases before the circuit court for settlement before February 5, when court will open in another district. Dates were set when the attorneys appeared before the court.
